Are "alien abductions" a cover story for brutal experiments carried out by US intelligence agencies in the quest for total domination of the human mind? American UFO researcher Martin Cannon suggests this may be the case in his essay ' The Controllers : A New Hypothesis of Alien Abduction ' :

I posit that the abductees HAVE been abducted. Yet they are also spewing fantasy - or more precisely, they have been given a set of lies to repeat and believe.

A variety of US intelligence agencies have been carrying out mind control research since the Second World War, including the infamous CIA Project MKULTRA (1953 - 62) which explored the possibilities of hypnosis, conditioning, sensory deprivation, drugs, religious cults, microwaves, psychosurgery, brain implants, ESP, and " psychoelectronics ".

CIA scientists (many of them "ex"- Nazi death camp doctors courtesy of Operation PAPERCLIP) found that their experiments on unwitting human subjects presented the problem of "disposal" - pushing them out of windows or locking them away in mental institutions could lead to awkward questions. A solution could be found in the erasure of the victims' memory with the added bonus of being useful in a clandestine context, as Victor Marchetti "ex"- CIA) explains :

Amnesia was a big goal...the agent doesn't even know what he's done...you send him in, he does the job. When he comes out, you clean him out.

The problem with hypnotically induced amnesia is "leakage" - dreams or flashbacks of the repressed material. The installation of a "screen memory" would ensure that any recollection would be of a false memory. Dr Orne (CIA scientist and board member of the False Memory Syndrome Foundation) writes " this phenomenon is easier to produce than total amnesia, perhaps because it eliminates the subjective feeling of an empty space in memory." Extra layers of confusion can be added by hypnotically creating multiple personalities, providing an array of "cover stories" . Abductees who recollect being experimented on by the "greys" may be experiencing "screen" memories of CIA surgical and psychological testing.

Abductees often report having been operated on, having needles inserted in their brains or objects inserted up their nose. Intracerebral implants are alleged to have been found in X-Rays and MRI scans of abductees. These objects could be of terrestrial origin - a device called the "stimociever" was invented in the 50's by Jose Delgado, author of ' Physical Control of the Mind : Toward a Psychocivilized Society ' and CIA funded researcher into electronic stimulation of the brain (ESB). The stimociever is a miniature electrode placed within the brain which can receive and transmit electronic signals over FM radio waves. Delgado claimed that "motion, emotion and behaviour can be directed by physical forces and that humans can be controlled like robots by push buttons." His research showed that ESB via the stimociever could create a variety of effects including "coloured visions" and "floating" sensations - familiar features of abduction accounts.

The "greys" don't have a monopoly on implant stories - "wavies", the victims of non-ionising radiation (microwave) research are recounting tales of having been implanted. Swede Robert Naeslund claims to have been implanted in the 60's by the Swedish Secret Police (SAPO) in conjunction with the CIA. He has X-Ray "evidence" and has had the device removed by a sympathetic doctor. He first realised that something had happened to him when he suffered an inexplicable nosebleed - a regular occurrence in alien abductions. A 1977 scientific paper - "Quantization of Microwave Biological Effects" - describes the use of nasally implanted electrodes in animals to measure the effects of electromagnetic radiation (EMR).

A Finnish "wavie", Martti Koski, claims to have been experimented on whilst visiting Canada. During the course of one session he was told that the doctors tampering with him were "aliens from Sirius". Another time he was told that he was under the direction of "the Lord". ' Abductions' by Jenny Randles details a 1965 incident where one of the 'examiners' remarks "They will think it's flying saucers".

In 1967, Lincoln Lawrence (a pseudonym) wrote a JFK assassination book, 'Were We Controlled', which asserted Oswald was a hypnoprogrammed assassin with a malfunctioning implant in his brain (in this case the conspiracy was the work of multinationals). Lawrence was the first to reveal the mythical method of RHIC-EDOM (Radio-Hypnotic Intracerebral Control / Electronic Dissolution Of Memory) which apparently can turn men into electronically controlled robots programmed to kill on cue. RHIC consists of conditioning the victim to enter a deep trance at the sound of a specific tone transmitted to a brain implant :

Under RHIC, a 'sleeper' can be used years later with no realisation that the 'sleeper' is even being controlled! He can be made to perform acts that he will have no memories of having ever carried out...nothing he says will implicate the group or government which possessed and controlled him.

The second stage of the process , EDOM, involves the electronic interference of neurotransmitters to create amnesia :

There is already in use a small EDOM generator- transmitter which can be concealed on the body of a person. Contact with the person - a casual handshake or even just a touch - transmits a tiny electronic charge plus an ultrasonic signal tone which for a short while will disturb the time orientation of the person affected.

In 1975, journalist James L. Moore claimed that he had been given information on RHIC-EDOM by two CIA agents which detailed the uses the method could be put to :

A person may be placed under this control with or without his knowledge , programmed to perform certain actions and maintain certain attitudes...effective for a lifetime, control maybe triggered weeks, months or even years after the first 'hypnosis' and programming...[the] emotion of anger can be created by artificial radio signals sent to your brain.

If RHIC-EDOM exists it could explain abductee symptoms such as implants, missing time, personality shifts and 'repeater' abductions - but even if it doesn't there are still other methods of interfering with the human mind.

Recent years have seen a proliferation of ' mind machines ' providing 'drugless highs'.

One device is the Hemisync - a slightly different frequency played into each ear results in the brain calculating the difference between the two producing a 'binaural beat', to which the brain then entrains itself .The brain can be entrained to produce Alpha and Beta waves which make the subject open to suggestion and capable of vivid hallucination (binaural beats were used to little effect by 80's industrial groups Throbbing Gristle and Clock DVA). UFO abductees describe 'stereophonic sound effects' before an abduction - could this be binaural beats transmitted via radio to a stimociever in each ear?

Electromagnetic Radiation (EMR), Extra Low Frequency (ELF) and ultrasonics were areas of research known to have been covered in the 60's by the US Defence Advanced Research Project Agency (DARPA) by Project PANDORA. Microwaves were examined with regard to possible use in mind control. The results indicated that pulsed microwaves can create leaks in the blood/brain barrier, induce heart seizures and create behavioural disorganisation. Further studies by the CIA-linked RAND corporation showed that insomnia, fatigue, irritability, memory loss and hallucinations could be caused by microwaves. The victim only has to be placed within an electromagnetic field to suffer the effects although internal electrodes amplify the 'wave'. Microwaves can entrain the mind to Theta rhythms - in effect , a directed trance can be remotely induced. In 1973, Dr Sharp of the Walter Reed Army Institute showed that pulsed microwaves could transmit spoken words. In 1974 J.F. Schapitz (funded by the Department of Defence) proposed to study the effects of radio frequencies in conjunction with hypnosis : "the spoken word of the hypnotist may be conveyed by electromagnetic energy directly into the subconscious parts of the human brain." The subjects would be planted with a subconscious suggestion which could be triggered by cue word or image (ie. Jack Ruby, Sirhan Sirhan, Mark Chapman?). Microwaves could provide an explanation for 'telepathic communication' and repeat abductees - the implanted victim is targeted within a directed beam whilst their partner sleeps soundly beside them. Microwaves can also cause disruption of electrical fields which may be the cause of the haywire electronics prevalent in UFO accounts. Microwaves also have benign properties - perhaps resulting in the "miraculous cures" performed by the "aliens".

Nowadays, EMR research is still being carried out under the guise of 'Non-Lethal Weaponry',' Low-Intensity Conflict and SDI (better known as "Star Wars) as any 'wowie' could tell you. One scientist involved in this type of research is Michael Persinger who has discovered that Extra Low Frequency (ELF) can induce vomiting - a handy trick in a combat situation. He is perhaps better known for his theories regarding UFO's - high amplitude electromagnetic pulses are produced by movements of the earth's crust which cause disturbances in the temporal lobe of the brain. He has statistics to show that seismic activity corresponds to UFO activity. He has also stated that he can replicate the Near Death Experience in the laboratory by the introduction of an electrical current into the temporal lobe - maybe he could also induce alien visions ?

The purpose of this research is apparently the production of programmed agents able to accomplish their tasks with no recollection of their deeds. US service men are now coming forward with claims that whilst on routine training courses they were drugged, hypnotised, placed under "electronic control" and subjected to extreme pain/pleasure operant conditioning. A US naval officer , during a lecture in the 70's, hinted that that there might be some substance to their claims. He stated that recruits at the NATO HQ in Naples, Florida were strapped into their chairs to watch films of industrial accidents and African circumcision ceremonies (reminds me of Psychic TV gigs in 85-86) in order to turn them into bloodcrazed killers who were then sent on assassination missions. A feature of abduction accounts is being made to watch "training films" - some feature being handed an ordinary handgun and instructions to shoot someone.

Who would believe it when an assassin says "Aliens told me to do it"?
