My dear Norman,

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

I hope you have got ~~the~~ two letters from Paris, and that answers from you are on the way. This is just to ask you to do something to help the Work. I regret to say that I am selecting you, ~~not~~ because of any particular brilliance in the star which you are, but because of its position. However, mathematician as you are, you will understand all that. Further Simpson Corollary. Also for South Africa

The point is that you are comparatively near Johannesburg. My representative there used to be one J.T. Windram, a chartered accountant, Bayard's Observatory, and he has disappeared leaving no address, which he has a perfect right to do, but I have also a perfect right to get into communication with the people who used to be under him. These were principally a man named Gardley, the personification of human weakness but a thoroughly good fellow, and one, A.W. Bauristhane, who must be some kind of Kaffir. I suspect him of being rather a good chap.

If you, by correspondence or otherwise, can recover the trace of Windram and let the other two men know that headquarters are now here and that we are anxious to continue to help them, it would be very nice of you.

Do you remember "Drunken James of Corpus"? He re-introduced himself to me in Paris where he is now a highly placed official in the League of Nations - one more example of what drunkenness may lead to.

anxious to demonstrate to the world at large that the Quintessence of modern mathematics-logical Truth is contained in The Book of The Law. Also, that that Book contains proof of a bodiless Intelligence of greater human powers. I have worked out the details of these theses; but I have not the command of the technical terms of Higher Mathematics.

Now, no less surely than I myself was chosen by AIWAZ to take down The Book of The Law, were all the events in my life designed to subserve His Will to discover to the world His Truth, the Word and the Formula of the Law of this new Aeon. WHY then did it happen that you and I met, and that you knew in your inmost Self that your Father had come upon you? I did not attach any special importance to meeting you. I was intentionally blinded as to your part in my Work; lest I should have tried to force the situation, in the way I have done so often with clumsy impulsive folly, and spoilt everything. But I see clearly enough to-day; the logic of facts compels me; I announce the simple syllogism which concerns us, and the conclusion which explains the necessity for our destinies to have come into

Care Frater,

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

It is rather astonishing that after having a telegram from you so promptly and the nice letter that you sent, that I have not been able to get any further news of you of any sort.

Jones seems to have the same experience. I hope it doesn't mean that you are ill, but I feel obliged to warn you that having taken up Magick all sorts of strange things are liable to happen. At the present moment, for example, a letter which should have been sent from London a month ago has not turned up. I impress this on you so that you may be thoroughly on your guard, and in case of anything going wrong, suspect Magick at once. Don't assume that letters will be delivered even if registered. In short, act as if you were at war. I have nothing to add to previous letters. In case the last has miscarried, the chief point was to draw your attention to the fact that I'm in extreme need of a mathematician to help me work out the proof that the Book of the Law is evidence of a disincarnate intelligence. I want to get into immediate close touch with you and if possible, to arrange for a foregathering. I am convinced that this is the most important piece of work

Care Frater,

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

It is rather astonishing that after having a telegram from you so promptly and the nice letter that you sent, that I have not been able to get any further news of you of any sort.

Jones seems to have the same experience. I hope it doesn't mean that you are ill, but I feel obliged to warn you that having taken up Magick all sorts of strange things are liable to happen. At the present moment, for example, a letter which should have been sent from London a month ago has not turned up. I impress this on you so that you may be thoroughly on your guard, and in case of anything going wrong, suspect Magick at once. Don't assume that letters will be delivered even if registered. In short, act as if you were at war. I have nothing to add to previous letters. In case the last has miscarried, the chief point was to draw your attention to the fact that I'm in extreme need of a mathematician to help me work out the proof that the Book of the Law is evidence of a disincarnate intelligence. I want to get into immediate close touch with you and if possible, to arrange for a foregathering. I am convinced that this is the most important piece of work at present, even from the quite normal standpoint of humanity, and that destiny is knocking at your door. Please let me hear from you at once, if it is no more than a line to say that you have got this letter,

Love is the law, love under will,

Yours fraternally, -
