Paris, VI.

29 January 1924.

Menas Parker Garrett,
Dear Sirs,

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

Yours of 28 January.

I have not yet been accused of anything whatever, and am therefore not in a position to defend myself either to your satisfaction or that of anyone else.

My friends have told me for some time that you have been deliberately disloyal to me throughout. Your arguments to the same effect are beginning to convince me.

I will send my representative to see you shortly, when I hope you will be able to justify yourself against the accusations of breach of professional faith which circumstances unfortunately have caused me to utter.

Love is the law, love under will.

Harris.

I have drifted back from a week end at J. I want you to forgive me for everything. I am in a not ext. mental state. It is quite beyond (any) in the end. S. of the W's. I can only say that I feel I am being bored. All my thoughts are analysed into apparently ultimate elements. Practical action beyond mechanical reactions to eating & sleeping is practically inhibited. I feel that I owe you pages of exp^l of how O's stand, and am too infantile to compose them. I can give no reason for suffering that my mind is not going entirely. I simply know that it is not.

I take a stimulant & make a violent effort to understand you. I shall take Ruskin to-morrow to either Fleet or the Times (Beattie has just seen Hearst's new hair-fancy thro. Paris on a visit. It is having "one of our pen. fits of economy". I won't buy anything at the moment. B. who likes several of my sugg^s v. much O's. It should be offered rather to magazines. I have written to N. Hapgood with numerous sugg^s including yours. I know him personally & hope for good results.

I will also mention the matter to the N.T. Times but here arises the qst as to whether they say not harbour rancour against you. I will let you know what they say.

Days.

My 2nd of "has been put off till Sat. the 16th so you must consider me semi-crippled till the 20th at earliest. The critical pt. is that I am really so helpless physically that I need someone to look after. I shall necessarily for me, owing to that luck. I am of Nature which prevents people by a 2 or more places at once. That means that my N. H. has to stay in a hotel instead of ready to London & gett^g some out of some cases.

Is there any real hope of your France making good? I could thanks to the assist. of my a.h. afford to do 100 useful days about the proper capitalising of the paper. I could beg with all sorts of prom. people but what with the drain on my time & the strain on my nerves esp. by present day cond. due to the extreme price. about 16-hundred food I am rendered quite helpless. If I had 10000 francs next week I could put things in quite decent order in a v. few days I feel sure.

I told you already how strange were the about doing without that bought the most foreign, plain & the most (un)comfortable manner. I will quote just 2 examples.

1. As any money is called to Tunes or Jan 10. Neither our divs nor the sender (apparently) can get any info. whatever as to what has happened to the cash. We cannot even get a reply to urgent letters.
17) Stelzer who lives close to London & is a friend of some 20 yrs standing.

18.2. An old friend turns up, unexpected, about 3 w. ago manifests the utmost sympathy & goodwill, gives me some money to go on with, of books etc.
not more & leaves Paris saying he will return in a fortnight & gives me an address to write to. (He is connected with this G. bank of which I write. He is my Pandarus with the G. Bank. I have not returned. We get no answer to 4 letters & 2 telegrams. One letter is returned by the P.O. Of the rest we have no news.

Really I can't help feeling sometimes that I have got into a world where the laws of cause & effect no longer obtain. It is of course to lay up my basket of grief for my one inadequate try. But when the same lack of rationality applies to all of them, the laws prob. give and a similar laugh & declare further reforms in the matter.

I told you already how strange were the almost daily incidents that baffle the most promising plans in the most uncomfortable manner. I will quote just 2 incidents.

world where the laws of cause & effect are looser than in the world of a country

the same lack of rationality applies to all of them the laws prob. give and of a similar laugh & decline further info. in the matter.
