

UPDATE 17

This time I've added two new folders in A.'.A.'.>Aleister Crowley

The first is a small file where I've moved my diary fragments and added a .zip with a fuckton of sometimes unpublished diaries.

The next one is a bit more important. In A.'.A.'.>Aleister Crowley you'll now find a folder called the Yorke Microfilms of the Warburg Collection. It contains Films 1, 6, and 8. This includes A.'.A.'. folders with unpublished material, hundreds of unpublished pages of commentary on AL, and typescripts/handwritten drafts and notes of some of Crowley's books. I have Film 4, but it's somewhat illegible, and I'm still in negotiations Interlibrary Loan to obtain two or three more films. An index is included in the folders to help navigate, as I've arranged it using The Yorke Microfilm's own categorization system. Other than people working in a university, when it comes to serious occultniks, probably less than 20 people have access to this. That number is about to get much larger. I'd recommend that any passer by with a TO.bz account download this material and post it over there.

UPDATE 18

>A.'.A.'.>Crowley>Yorke Microfilms of the Warburg Collection

Added Yorke Microfilm #9

Added the preview of Liber AL vel Bogus in that folder for insight as to why OS 23 is missing.

>A.'.A.'.>Libri

Added "Thelema", or the original 1909 copies of the Holy Books; these would have been given to you if you'd met Crowley and joined A.'.A.'. as soon as it was public. Notice the differences between those books and what we have today.

>A.'.A.'.>Libri>Pestilence

Added a number from ITC with the comment on Liber VII that's in Equinox vol. 4 no. 1 as well as the issue of MZLA which has a different comment. Imo, the comments can only be understood when read together.

>A.'.A.'.>Thelema

Added a GBG folder, with the CF Russell material.

>Kabbalah

Geniza Fragments, or the earliest extant writing we have on the Hekhalot and Merkava mysticism, it was already more or less fully developed.

UPDATE 21

A.'A.'>Philosophy
John Zorn's Arcana V. Musicians on Music, Magic, and Symbolism. First chapter was written by Bill Breeze. It's actually worth reading through.

Music and Esotericism. More or less what it says, it's an academic collection and only partially in English. I'll take the Zorn.

>Eastern>Vajrayana
Self Initiation of Vajrabhairava. Use at your own risk.

>European (finally filling this out a bit)
Religion of Ancient Scandinavia. A little old but none the worse for it.

Greek Magical Papyri in Translation. Just another edition of the same old shit. Substantially nicer than my current copy. It's an academic version. May throw it in the Grimoires folder.

Initiation into the Mysteries of the Ancient World. Another academic, presents pretty decent reconstructions of the Eleusinian cult, and others. May throw this in the A.'A.'>Philosophy file.

Greek Sacred Law. This thing is almost required for reconstructing the Greek religion. Combine this with Greek Magical Papyrus and the newly included reconstruction of the Greek mystery cults and, like, das it mane.

Magic and Ritual in the Ancient World. More straight anthropology than anything else, though there may be something useful for folks out there. Sperg alert: It's mostly only in here because of the Greek/Roman bits, which are only in a chapter or two.

Witchcraft and Belief in Early Scotland. Haven't looked. Probably useful for certain types of Wiccan, Pagan, or Cultus Sabbati folks.

>Gnosticism

The Mithras Liturgy. It's just an English translation of the text with the same name.

>Grimoires>Picatrix

Added the Latin version from the Warburg Institute.

>Kabbalah

The Enlightened Will Shine. Notes on Lurianic Theurgy.

>Neoplatonism

Rethinking Dionysus the Areopagite. Haven't looked at it, but it's PROBABLY a refutation of difference between Pseudo-Dionysius and the idiot that Paul converted.

>Voodoo/African

Obeah Witchcraft in the West Indies. Very old. It's a decent snapshot of what Afro-Carib magic looked like as soon as it coalesced, but it's old anthropology so take it with a few grains of salt.
